She Showed Me Her Shaking Hands

(used with Melissa's permission)

Melissa walked into Options360 on March 23rd for a pregnancy test, which was positive. "I can't have this, I can't do this", Melissa said as she showed me her shaking hands. We talked about fetal development and what God says about life. She said that she doesn't believe in abortion but felt that "it" isn't formed yet. Melissa said that her parents are against abortion but that her boyfriend of 8 months would "freak". She was shown the 7, 8, 9 and 10 week fetal models and held them in her hand; then she agreed to have an ultrasound to help with her decision. I was able to pray with Melissa about the difficult decision she was facing, and asked God to give her the wisdom and strength she needed now.

Melissa did gain the wisdom and strength she needed, and her boyfriend and parents became very supportive. After seeing little Riley on the ultrasound, Melissa and Kyle (her boyfriend) have taken many parenting lessons and have earned baby items for Riley. Melissa now says "Riley is the best thing that's ever happened."

After an extended maternity leave, Melissa is returning to school to finish up her degree. We were all excited to hold 5 day old Riley.

Saved from Abortion by Ultrasound

Rosa came to our Options360° clinic in January of this year. Her mother and boyfriend came with her. She met with Kristine, a volunteer at O360°. She wasn't sure if she was pregnant. Her test came out positive and she just cried.

Her mother wanted her to abort her baby if the test was positive. Our nurse was able to offer Rosa an ultrasound scan right away, which Rosa accepted. When Rosa saw her baby she couldn't believe it, and all she could say was, "That's my baby." But then Rosa remembered her mother was in the waiting room she became very scared.

Rosa couldn't decide if she wanted her mom to come in to see the baby, but our nurse encouraged her to bring her mother in. When her mother was brought in, she was very distant with her arms crossed and very upset. As our nurse scanned Rosa's belly again and found the baby, Rosa's mom watched the screen in disbelief. There was her grandchild with arm, legs, belly, head, and a beating heart. She touched her own belly and said, "We can't terminate this pregnancy, that's a baby!" It was such a wonderful story to be a part of, but that's not where it ends.

We didn't see Rosa for 8 months, unsure of what happened to her. When we finally found her we asked if she would be in a video that we could share with other people. Her son was a month old and she brought him to the O360° Orchards clinic to film. Little Alejandro had more hair than any baby we've ever seen! Just look at that picture! Rosa started taking the parenting lessons once a week and meets with Kristine. She earns baby bucks to take to our Battle Ground Baby Boutique to shop for everything she could need for little Alejandro. Kristine will continue to nurture this special relationship with Rosa as she learns how to be the best mom she can be!

*For you created my inmost being;
You knit me together in my mother's womb,
I praise you because I am fearfully and wonderfully made;
Your works are wonderful,
I know that full well.
My frame was not hidden from you when I was made in the secret place.
When I was woven together in the depths of the earth,
your eyes saw my unformed body.
All the days ordained for me were written in your book before one of them came to be.*

Vancouver Pregnancy Resource Center had been caring for pregnant women for twenty-six years. Located on Mill Plain Blvd., this was the busiest Pregnancy Clinic in Clark County. They were no longer able to keep their doors open after June 2009 and asked Options360^o to take over and continue their mission. Vancouver PRC was blessed with 165 babies in 2008, that equals 6 classes of 1st graders, whose mothers chose life for them. Even one baby warms your heart, but when you think about 165 babies it takes your breath away. Imagine what it would look like to be at the feet of God and see 165 beautiful little smiles surrounding you and knowing your love was there when their mother saw them for the first time through the window of an ultrasound. We are very blessed to watch her as she touches the screen and her tummy at the same time and cries. At that very moment she sees truth, not a lump of tissue but her baby's beating heart. Her baby's heart beats for the first time between 21 and 23 days. Before she even knows she is pregnant a miracle happens, that little heart suddenly moves. Her motherly instincts compel her from abortion to wanting to Protect Her Baby. We need your help! We do not have an ultrasound machine for Vancouver! Through ultrasound 90% of abortion vulnerable women will choose life. Until we have this available we will not be able to protect many of the little babies that will never know a first breath. Volunteers and staff are working hard to have Vancouver open by January. Throughout the day, young women pull up in the parking lot and knock on the door. We redirect them to our Orchards Pregnancy Clinic, but have lost many. With the help of Focus on the Family and many others we have raised the funds needed to re-open the clinic, but now need the most vital piece of equipment in our ministry; AN ULTRASOUND MACHINE. There are many expenses involved in operating and maintaining an ultrasound machine and all that goes with it. With your help we need to raise $95,000. This will allow Options360^o to provide the best love and care for every women that needs HOPE at a time when life seems hopeless. We don't want to lose even one of these little smiles.

When do mere months make a difference?

The second picture is only 7 months later.

The first photo is the perfectly formed feet of a 10-week unborn child. If the mother had the chance to see her baby's tiny feet and beating heart on an ultrasound screen, there's a 90% chance she would have chosen to keep her baby.

Yes, Renee, I want to help even more babies be seen on ultrasound and have that last chance!

Planned Parenthood Director Quits After Watching Abortion on Ultrasound

Monday, November 02, 2009 FOX NEWS
Joseph Abrams

The former director of a Planned Parenthood clinic in southeast Texas says she had a "change of heart" after watching an abortion last month — so she quit her job and joined a pro-life group in praying outside the facility.

Abby Johnson, 29, used to escort women from their cars to the clinic in the eight years she volunteered and worked for Planned Parenthood in Bryan, Texas. But she says she knew it was time to leave after she watched a fetus "crumple" as it was vacuumed out of a patient's uterus in September. "I had never seen an abortion happen on an ultrasound," she said. "My job during the procedure was to hold the probe on the woman's abdomen. I could see the whole profile of the baby 13 weeks head to foot. I could see the whole side profile. I could see the probe. I could see the baby try to move away from the probe."

"When I was working at Planned Parenthood I was extremely pro-choice," Johnson told FoxNews.com. But after seeing the internal workings of the procedure for the first time on an ultrasound monitor, "I would say there was a definite conversion in my heart ... a spiritual conversion."

Johnson said she became disillusioned with her job after her bosses pressured her for months to increase profits by performing more and more abortions, which cost patients between $505 and $695. "Every meeting that we had was, "We don't have enough money, we don't have enough money — we've got to keep these abortions coming," Johnson told FoxNews.com. "It's a very lucrative business and that's why they want to increase numbers."

A spokeswoman for Planned Parenthood told FoxNews.com that it offers a range of services at its 850 health centers nationwide, providing pregnancy tests, vaccinations and women's health services, "including wellness exams, breast and cervical cancer screenings, contraception, and STD testing and treatment."

But Johnson said her bosses told her to change her "priorities" and focus on abortions, which she said made money for the office at a time when the recession has left them hurting.

"For them there's not a lot of money in education," she said. "There's not as much money in family planning as there is with abortion." Without a doctor in residence, she said her clinic offered abortions only two days a month, but the doctor could perform 30 to 40 procedures on each day he was there. Johnson estimated that each abortion could net the branch about $350, adding up to more than $10,000 a month. "The majority of the money was going to the facility," she said.

Johnson said she never got any orders to increase profits in e-mails or letters, and had no way to prove her allegations about practices at the Bryan branch. She told FoxNews.com that the pressure came in personal interactions with her regional manager from the larger Houston office. But she said she got involved with the clinic "to help women and ... [do] the right thing," and the idea of raking in cash seemed to go against what she felt was the mission of the 93-year-old organization.

"Ideally my goal as the facility's director is that your abortion numbers don't increase," because "you're providing so much family planning and so much education that there is not a demand for abortion services. But that was not their goal," she said. Johnson hasn't found a job since she quit on Oct. 6, but she said she's enjoying the time off to be with her 3-year-old daughter.

Note: College Station, Texas, Nov. 10th, 2009

Planned Parenthood sought a restraining order against Abby Johnson, but during a hearing on November 10th, Judge Langley listened to nearly two hours of testimony from each side before stating that Planned Parenthood did not offer convincing reasons "to warrant the extreme remedy of injunctive relief."
